When they coined the phrase "triple threat" they might as well have been talking about the Mamakas Food Group. This trifecta of delicious dining venues from Thanos Tripi include Agora, a farm-fresh Greek market located on Queen Street West, opposite the gates of Trinity Bellwoods Park; Bar Koukla, an intimate meze + wine bar on Ossington Avenue; and the eponymous Mamakas Taverna, a bastion of modern Greek cuisine and culture. What started as a tribute to the matriarchs of Tripi's family, has evolved into a consummate hospitality group with some of the most celebrated and talented chefs in the city. And they're all just a stone's throw from Bellwoods House.

THE ARCHITECTURE FEELS ROOTED IN THE AREA,
RESPONDING TO THE RICHNESS, DIVERSITY,
AND VIBRANCY OF TRINITY BELLWOODS, AND INTEGRATING SEAMLESSLY INTO ONE OF THE MOST EXCITING NEIGHBOURHOODS IN THE WORLD.

MANSOOR KAZEROUNI
GLOBAL DIRECTOR
ARCHITECTURE & URBANISM, ARCADIS

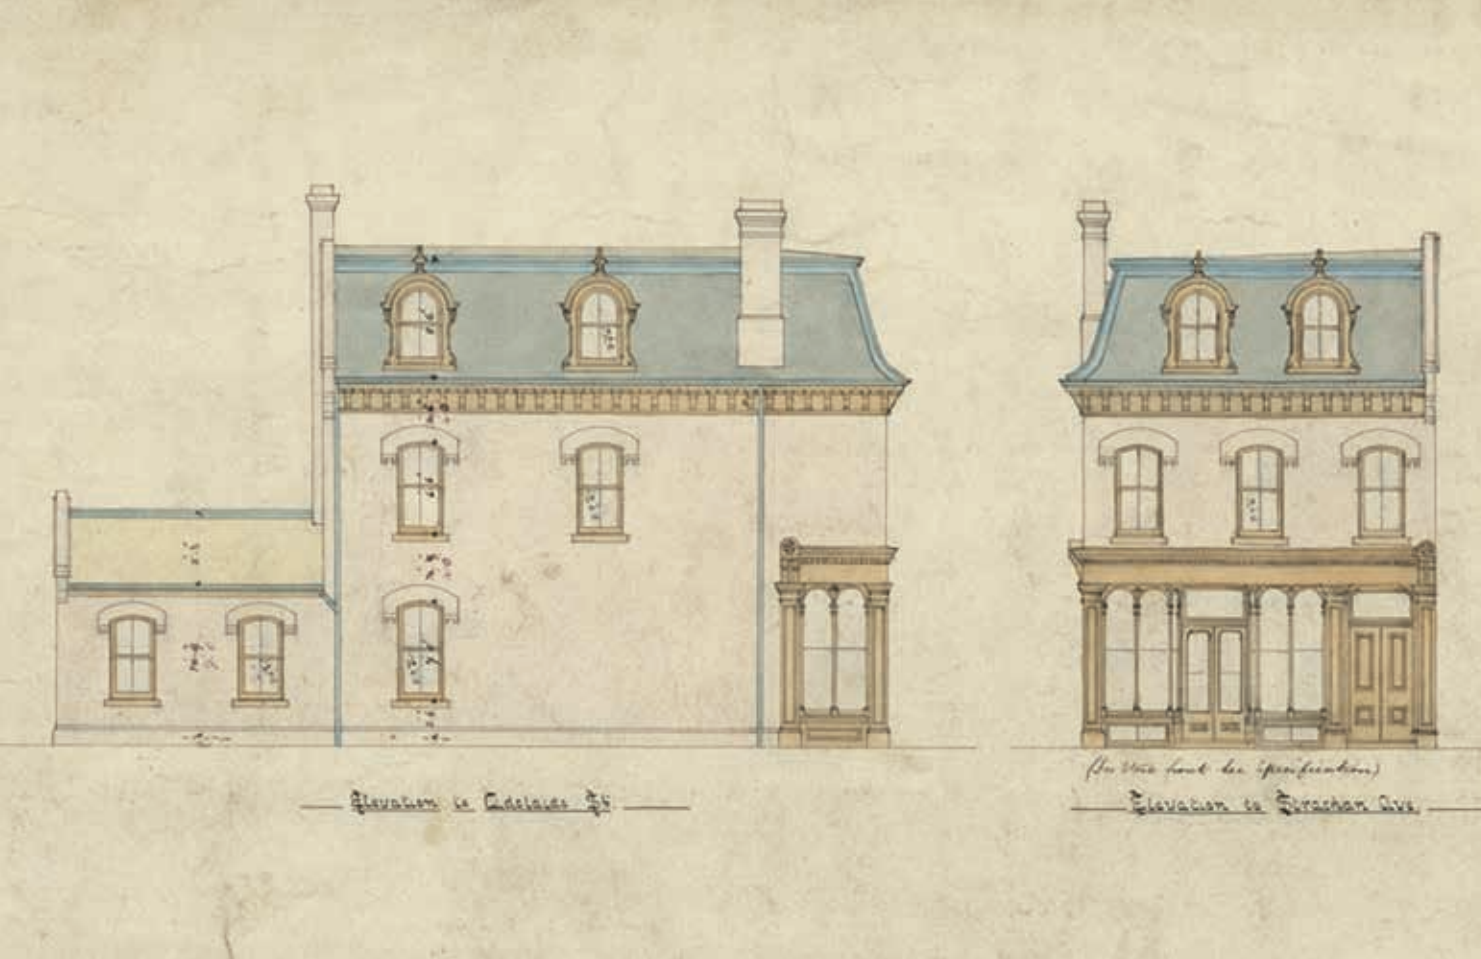

AN EVOLUTION IN THE URBAN ENVIRONMENT

Inspired by the industrial heritage of the neighbourhood, but with the contemporary details that define the area's modern luxury residential homes, Bellwoods House represents an evolution in quality and design, truly belonging to the Bellwoods community, in every sense of the word.

The architecture is all about authenticity, contextual and reverential to the character and history of the neighbourhood. Yet, it also represents a step forward in sophistication, attention to detail, and high design rarely seen today.

At street level, the built form begins with expansive windows, arch details, rich masonry, and black metal framing. The red-hued brick façade rises to various heights across the building, breaking up the block and creating a sense of articulation where it meets the glazed façade above. Setbacks create space for expansive private balconies and terraces with breathtaking views.

The building is expertly integrated with a beautifully restored 3-storey heritage property on the northwest corner of the site. This historic style is a counterpoint to the modern townhomes wrapping around the base of the building, detailed with reeded wood doors and rows of white hydrangeas, animating the laneway and celebrating the residential character of Strachan Avenue.

1877 | DRAWING OF MEYER'S STORE BY DAVID BRASH DICK

HERITAGE, RESTORED

A remarkable example of Second-Empire architecture, with signature mansard roofs and dormer windows, the heritage building at the corner of Adelaide & Strachan dates back to 1878 and was designed by notable Toronto architect, David Brash Dick, best known for his architectural contributions to the University of Toronto.

For nearly 80 years the building housed mainly grocers, welcoming a greater variety of businesses from the late 1950s to the early 1980s. In 1997, the site was rezoned as a restaurant. And now, perfectly restored and integrated into Bellwoods House, it will begin a new chapter, bringing life and a greater sense of community to the neighbourhood.

THERE IS AN UNDENIABLE SENSE OF BELONGING AND AUTHENTICITY THROUGHOUT THE INTERIOR DESIGN OF THIS PROJECT. INSPIRED & INNOVATIVE

The wide-ranging amenity program at Bellwoods House is designed around the human experience, creating settings that support today's modern lifestyle. The industrial and luxurious aesthetic flows from the architecture to the interior design, giving the feeling of a luxury boutique hotel with contrasting tones and textures, inspiring artwork, and a strong connection to the outdoors.

The ground floor layout promotes a sense of community and encourages interaction with distinct spaces that are connected visually, physically, and even olfactorily thanks to an innovative system that will imbue the lobby, lounge, and ground floor elevator corridor with a subtle scent reminiscent of your favourite boutique hotels in London, Paris, and New York.

Step into the residents' lounge, just off the lobby, and discover timeless design and an intimate, yet engaging atmosphere, where the red-brick masonry of the building façade is layered with cognac leather, marble accents, herringbone wood, sculptural lighting, and arched windows detailed in black brushed metal.

From a dog spa and car share, to a bike repair and wash station, to intelligent building technology like a smart parcel room and high-speed Bell Fibe wifi throughout the building's common areas, the amenities at Bellwoods House answer your every need and desire.

The boutique chic design language continues in the ground floor library lounge and coworking space, a place that seems devised to promote chance encounters and unleash your creativity. The linear space is strategically allocated into different zones, with everything from a communal self-service bar and island worktop where you can mix and mingle with other innovators and entrepreneurs, to a business centre with hot desks, private offices, and banquettes. There's even a podcast studio with state-of-the-art A/V recording capabilities, giving you the tools you need to share your unique point of view. The entire length of the space is lined with arched windows with views onto the outdoor courtyard, affording natural light and the outdoor connection proven to increase creativity and reduce stress.

The beautifully-landscaped ground floor courtyard at Bellwoods House is the perfect addition to the timeless architecture of the building. Relaxed and inviting, the courtyard uses a series of wood arbours to define private niches designed for live, work, and play. The sleek, streamlined, and sophisticated style is expressed through modern decorative pavers, soft ambient lighting, contemporary furnishings with smooth organic lines, and raised planters that hold leafy deciduous trees and blooming flowers, providing both privacy and protection from the street.

If you're looking for an unforgettable place to entertain, you'll love the 3rd floor Social Club. The intimate space is connected to an outdoor terrace, blurring the boundaries between the interior and the exterior. Relax by the fire in a setting that feels like a private living and dining room, your very own place to host an intimate dinner party or an evening with friends.

Outside, the good times continue on the 3rd floor Outdoor Terrace. Peace, serenity, and a refined sense of ease are the feelings you'll come to associate with this luxe outdoor space where private cabanas, barbeque and dining areas, and a hypnotizing outdoor fireside lounge, create an oasis amongst the trees where you can relax and unwind.
